

Top 15 Shooting Games for Android

When hunting down the top 15 shooting games for Android, we are spoilt for choice. There are now so many great first person and third person shooter games to consider, we thought a list of the best ones would be helpful. From aliens invading to Zombies with a blood lust to realistic warfare, it's all here.

Frontline Commando

Frontline Commando is a little different from a standard Call of Duty style shooter in that you don't move through terrain mowing down the bad guys. Instead, you tap a button to swap between four firing positions. These positions provide some degree of cover from incoming fire and only when you have killed all the bad guys do you progress to the next level. Fun, but basic.

There are a limited range of weapons to choose from including assault rifle, sniper rifle, pistol, shotgun, frag & stun grenade, and a knife. You'll want to become an expert at each.

Contract Killer 2

Contract Killer 2 comes fast on the heels of the original. Like the original, you play a sniper who is tasked with taking down some high value targets in far off locations. New York, Moscow, Dubai and other important locations provide the backdrop. To mix things up and get in close for that kill, there are also other weapons like a taser gun which can be bought in-game.

Six Guns

Six Guns is a Western-themed game. Stroll around with your pick of 19 guns, and 8 horses for when you get tired checking out the town. Graphics are good, but gameplay is quite basic and the game takes a while to load.

Deer Hunter Reloaded

If you're a lover of wildlife, then close your eyes now. Here you train your scope on leopards, bears, deer and caribou as they run past you or trample over you. Use a swiping motion, combined with zooming and firing options on the left and right side of the screen to try to be the Deer Hunter Reloaded.

Shadowgun

Shadowgun has to be one of the most advanced shooters one can get for Android. The graphics are top notch; the better your system, the more you get out of them. The music and sound effects are a bit more simple. There are five different types of enemies in the game (Soldier, spider, flying laser robot, bad-ass soldier, shotgun soldier). They are tough enough to kill that at times you'll feel unarmed even with a weapon in your hands, so this game keeps up the challenge fresh.

Max Payne Mobile

Good 'ole Max Payne is back in Max Payne Mobile. Roll back to 2001 and enjoy some "bullet time" as time slows down a la "The Matrix" film. One of the best third person shooters, with an engrossing storyline and solid action. Best to view on a large phablet or tablet display as Max was never meant for small screens.

9mm from Gameloft is raw. You're on foot, walking through different locales, kicking ass and taking names. Kicking down doors, flying through glass windows, shooting any bad guys in your path. Violence has never been so enjoyable! A good amount of profanity and other adult references, so maturity controls from Android may be in order for the kids.

Modern Combat 3

Gameloft continues in the same vein with their Modern Warfare look-alike. The multi-player option is cool with six maps available to play with up to 11 other online players. The action comes thick & fast and in the 3rd version, Modern Combat 3 is now able to stand toe to toe with Call of Duty.
